

Magdy Akladios, PhD, PE, CSP, CPE, CSHM:

Dr. Akladios is an Assistant Professor at the University of Houston-Clear Lake (2005-present), before which he was an Associate Professor at West Virginia University (1996-2005). Dr. Akladios' education includes a PhD in Industrial Engineering, a Master's degree in Occupational Health & Safety, a Master's degree in Industrial Engineering, an MBA, and a BS degree in Mechanical Engineering. In addition, he is also a Certified Safety Professional (CSP), a Professional Engineer (PE), a Certified Professional Ergonomist (CPE), a Certified Safety & Health Manager (CSHM), and a Certified Member of the Egyptian Syndicate for Mechanical Engineers. He is also a member in the Industrial Engineers' Honorary Society (Alpha-Pi-Mu).

He is an experienced and capable researcher and educator with specific knowledge concerning a wide variety of occupational safety and health programs in general, and in ergonomics in specific. He has acted as PI and Co-PI for a number of grants and projects. He has also been involved in curriculum development, authoring book chapters and professional journal articles, and website development and maintenance. Dr. Akladios is also involved with non-credit and continuing-Ed centers such as (Texas Engineering Extension (TEEX), and the College of the Mainland (COM).